Description of your Intended Use of Funds & Itemized Budget:

I am currently attending attending Claremont Graduate University; Claremont Colleges to pursue my Ph.D. in Political Science. My fields are public policy and political methodology. I want to receive my Ph.D. in order to become a professor at an institute of higher education. I am hoping to receive the Phi Kappa Phi Love of Learning scholarship in order to assist me in pursuing my educational and professional endeavors. I am hoping to use the $500 award to cover the cost of textbooks and travel expenses for presenting at academic conferences. The $500 will greatly assist me with my educational endeavors.

Personal Statement:

Being a first generation Chinese American and the first one in my family to go to college, my parents have always taught me to be grateful for my opportunities. Growing up in a poor family, scholarships have graciously benefited my educational and occupational endeavors. I think education is very important and without the support of generous government financial aids and scholarships, I would not have received the education that I did and the education I am hoping to obtain. My parents wanted me to live the American dream and to receive the education they were never able to receive. I am hoping to receive this scholarship because it will greatly benefit my abilities to pursue my Ph.D. at Claremont Graduate University.

My academic goal is to earn my Ph.D. in Political Science and to become a professor at an institute of higher education. Throughout my life, I have understood the importance of giving back to the community and in helping others. The support that I have been given by my parents, mentors, teachers, and local leaders has given me the drive, ambition, and determination to help others.

After 4 years of working as a police officer, I determined that I want more in life and want to make an impact in the community in a different capacity. I want to be a good professor that is able to inspire and give guidance to students like so many of my professors did for me. As a professor, I think it is important to follow the Phi Kappa Phi mission statement of promoting the values of academic excellence in higher education and to engage scholars in service of others. I have lived by those values my whole life and attempt to be a good role model.

Great professors do more than provide their students with the basic facts on the subject they are teaching. Great professors impart critical life skills and the necessary knowledge to succeed once the student graduate. Whether the students continues with academia or chooses to be part of the work force, the task of a professor is to teach the students on how to think critically and logically long after they graduate. As a professor it is important to be able to help the students make personal connections with what they learn to the world and in their field of study. I hope one day to be the kind of professor that can perpetuate knowledge and inspire my students to learn like so many professors have done for me.
